

In 2020 alone more than five and a half million people were officially diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease. And 1 in 9 people of 65 years or more lives with Alzheimer's disease. That is approximately the whole Congo's population, or two times Spain's population. But, have you ever stopped to wonder, what are we doing to help these people? Well, fear no more, hi, we are the Geanies and today we are presenting the solution of independence, safety and quality of life for Alzheimer's patients: Remember Me.

Remember Me, is an online app and platform, where patients can not only set up alarms, timers, active location, chats, get to know each other, online activities, and some others. But it also gives the chance to family members and health professionals to check on them by looking at their live stats for alarms and data, and program remote reminders, messages and alerts.

The app gives the opportunity for people with Alzheimer's disease to interact in live events, conferences, webinars, parties, contests, etc. And it also prepares family members with insights and information about how to give their best for the care of their patient. This app will also give the possibility of having stimulation therapy of the brain to reduce progression of the disease and having access to emergency contacts and location as well as immediate call to authorities when needed by the person.

But, in addition, this app will offer the opportunity for people all around the globe to sign up for free as volunteers called blue hats, were you can help organize events, engage, chat and get to know patients and how to help them in a closer and more realistic way that truly helps them

With this idea in mind, we not only plan to tackle the mortality rate and quality of lifestyle of people with Alzheimer's disease, but we also plan to inform and give full courses to family members and medical personnel as well as volunteers to be informed of how to give the best support possible to their patients. Keeping our initial goal in mind, we plan to build a free, good, and effective app for people with Alzheimer's to increase their life expectancy and quality of life, while informing people of the disease and raising awareness. Because, remember that, at the end, it is all about not forgetting. So just, remember us.
